Convention tales:

We were in Toronto 2005 Eating breakfast in neighborhood dinner, the restaurant was full of customers with our name badges on. Our waitress had her hands full and was looking a little fatigued with the volume of convention attendees. I was with my sponsor who invited our waitress to join us for a cup of coffee. He then volunteered to refill her customers coffee while she rest for a few minutes. She was a little confused as he took the coffee pots from her and gave her his seat. Conversation began with her and she was amazed at how members were so patient and courteous. Needless to say my sponsors example carried through the restaurant and our members were serving coffee all around while the restaurant staff to a much needed break.
